Landslide win for Wilson in Rep. jailer primary

Russell wins Republican judge-executive primary; incumbent Johnnie Padgett will face Kendall Johnson for 3rd-district magistrate seat

STANFORD — Rob Wilson claimed 72 percent of the votes for jailer in Lincoln County's Republican primary Tuesday, setting him up to challenge incumbent Democrat David Gooch in November. Philip W. Russell won a plurality of the votes in the Republican primary for judge-executive, beating fellow challengers Barry Allen and Jerry Lee Shelton by 209 and 317 votes respectively. Russell will take on incumbent Democrat Jim Adams in the fall.

In the primary races for third-district magistrate, incumbent Democrat Johnnie Padgett earned the right to run in the general election by claiming 38 percent of the vote in a four-way battle.

The three-way Republican primary was won by Kendall Johnson, who received 91 more votes than Paul Snyder and 95 more votes than Lewis Johnson.

HALLS GAP — When a pair of Lincoln County lovebirds decided to declare their love for each other by spray-painting it on the pavement at the historic Halls Gap overlook in central Lincoln County — and then posting a photo of their crime on Instagram — Hunter Taylor had had enough.

“They couldn’t fit what they wanted to say on the wall, so they put it on the pavement,” Taylor said while visiting the graffiti-covered lookout recently.

Taylor told them how he felt about what they had done in a comment on the photo.

Construction for west Lincoln sewer expected in spring 2015

By Ben Kleppinger
ben@theinteriorjournal.com

MORELAND — After spending close to a decade trying to get funding for a sewer system along Lincoln County's U.S. 127 corridor, officials believe they will be able to begin construction next year.

“This is a happy note,” project engineer Luther Galloway told Lincoln Fiscal Court members last week. “This has been on the county’s agenda through several (fiscal courts. ... The long-awaited Hustonville-U.S. 127 corridor sewer project is about to get off the ground.”

The Lincoln County Sanitation District has secured more than $3.5 million in funding for the first phase of the sewer-system project, including:

- a $1.4 million grant from the Kentucky Infrastructure Authority (KIA);
- a $1 million community development block grant;

- a $600,000 loan from KIA;
- a $500,000 grant from the Appalachian Regional Commission;
- $20,000 from Lincoln County Fiscal Court;
- $20,000 from Lincoln County's industrial board; and
- $5,000 from the city of Hustonville.

Galloway said about $1.5 million in funding is still unsecured, but he expects the county to receive that amount from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Rural Development funds.

How much of that will be grant funding and how much will be loans that have to be repaid is undetermined, Galloway said.

The county will be acquiring easements needed for construction from now until the fall, he said. Construction will likely begin in spring 2015 and will take one year to complete, he added.

Pleasant View Baptist Church news

By Scena Ann Petrey

The Waynesburg Community Blood Drive will be in the fellowship hall at Pleasant View on Thursday, June 5 from 2 to 6 p.m. Call the church is you have any questions.

Services for Sunday, May 18 opened with a special by the choir featuring Kallie Bailey. The song reminded us of the love Jesus had for us. Had He not loved us, all the world's armies nor all the world's nails could have kept Him on the cross. "In every season, I know You love me. At the cross I bow my head; there is no greater love than this" were words in the beautiful song.

The church wide fellowship that was to be Sunday evening has been changed to Sunday, June 1 following the morning worship. After the dinner, "Vision Sunday" will be explained. Everyone is asked to bring a vegetable, a salad, or a dessert.

"Does God Accept Our Best?" was the title of the morning message and was taken from Luke 10:25-37. This is the parable of the Good Samaritan. Jesus taught many lessons by using parables, which are earthly stories with heavenly meanings.

In this parable two devout Jewish church leaders walked by a badly beaten Samaritan. Not only did they walk by him, they moved to the far side of the road. Even though the Jews and Samaritans were bitter enemies, a Samaritan stopped, helped the man, took him to an innkeeper, and promised to pay all his expenses.

The reason for this parable was because a young man stood before Jesus and asked Him, "What can I do to receive eternal life?" His very question made it all about him and what he could do; not what Jesus could do.

Jesus' reply to him was this story. A very revealing truth to this parable is that we (none of us) are capable of saving ourselves, nor do we love others as we are supposed to.

"The real point is we are not the Good Samaritan, but Jesus is. He alone is the Way! Jesus did not risk His life on the road; He literally gave His life on the Cross in order to fulfill the law and save us when we could not save ourselves," emphasized Bro. Kyle.

Following the morning message, Ken and Susan Dunham joined our church. We welcome them into our church family.

Jason Petrey and Logan Godbey played in a piano recital at Stanford Baptist Church Sunday, May 18.

There is still time to sign up to work in Vacation Bible School June 16-20.

The Kentucky Heartland Outreach (KHO) is July 13-19. The youth's deposit of $50 is due June 1. See Matthew Mofield for more information.

Crossings Kid's Camp will be held July 20-23 for students finishing second through sixth grade. The cost is $200. Contact Stacy Story for more details.

Pleasant View will be recognizing our 2014 graduates on Sunday, June 8. There will be a breakfast served at 9 a.m. in the fellowship hall for the graduates and their families. If you know of a high school/college/tech school graduate, please see Matthew Mofield.

The WMU-Christ Followers will meet Monday, May 26 to visit the Golden Living Center. We will leave the church at 6:30 p.m.

The Senior Adults traveled to Western Kentucky Friday and returned Saturday. While there they saw a play, enjoyed different restaurants, and delighted in fellowship with each other. Those who went were as follows: Jerry and Rita Hampton, RJ and Vicki Harding, Tim and Anita O'Dell, Ken and Susan Dunham, Dewilla Holtzclaw, Peggy West, Shirley Bunch, Lisa Eldridge, Fama Greer, Connie Hannah, Judy Busher, Martha Cloniger, Brenda Pennington, Theresa Robertson, Thelma Foley, and Martha ( I did not get her last name).

Thought for the week: "He who kneels before God can stand before everyone!"

Stanford Nazarene Church news

By Buford Edwards II

Our mission at Stanford Church of the Nazarene is to share the gospel message of Jesus Christ to all the world and to be a place of healing and hope to all in need. Come as you are, Jesus will meet you there!

Sunday morning we honored mothers and looked into Acts 2 on the subject of, "What Must We Do?"

On Sunday night, we gathered together for praise and worship as we were blessed by the singing of the congregation and began a new sermon series on the Old Testament Feast in New Testament times. This week we took a deeper look at the Passover.

Join us Wednesday nights at 7 p.m. for our "Book Club." Right now the "Book Club" is engaging the Ashes to Fire series. This is an awesome series that leads us through Lent, Easter and Pentecost. The youth also have powerful services as well as our children. It's a busy place on Wednesday, come check it out.

We need your help! The church is working hard on year two of the "Five Year Plan." We are actively raising funds to purchase a church van and pay off the debt on the fellowship hall. If you would like to donate to the cause, you can drop off a donation at any service or even mail in a donation. Just remember to write "Five Year Plan," somewhere (memo field of check or envelope of cash) in order for it to be properly designated.

The Men's Group and Youth Group have entered into a joint venture to complete service projects in the community. If you are in need of any work done around your home that you are unable to complete, or know of any folks in need, please contact Bro. Robert Bowen or Bro. Dennis Hasty.

On Sunday May 25, Bro. Dennis Hasty, youth pastor will be bringing the message for both the morning and evening worship services. Come and support Bro. Dennis as he shares the Word.

The ladies meet the first Tuesday of every month at 6 p.m. in the fellowship hall. Their next regular meeting will be Tuesday, June 3.

Mark your calendars! June 22 will be our Pack the Pew Sunday. Just like last year we will have a morning service and fellowship meal to follow. Last year we had 99 in attendance and our goal is to pack the church till the walls pop out.

Our 2014 Vacation Bible School will be Saturday, July 19. Stay tuned for more details.

The Silent Auction and Concession Sale will be Saturday, Aug. 2. We are in need of items for the auction and volunteers. Tax receipts will be provided upon request and all proceeds will go to the 5-year plan. Begin gathering items now.

We are currently in the planning stages of a Silent Auction for July. If you are interested in donating items, please let Bro. Buford know. All proceeds will be directed toward our Five Year Plan.

The church has an active food assistance program. If you know of anyone or have a need yourself, leave a message at the church.

SERVICE TIMES: We have an amazing variety of blended services. Each week we have "Schoolin" (Sunday school) beginning at 10 a.m., with worship services on Sunday at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. Additionally, our "Book Club," youth, and children all meet together on Wednesday nights at 7 p.m. The "Book Club" and children always meet at the church and the youth alternate between the church and fellowship hall each week.

For more information about our youth group and children's programs, email the directors by logging on to our website at www.stanfordchurchofthenazarene.com

If you would like more information about our church and events, contact Pastor Buford Edwards at (606) 365-1260 or visit us on the web. Don't forget to also "like" the Stanford Church of the Nazarene on Facebook to receive updates and an encouraging word.

News from Kings Mountain

By Beverly Murphy

I am sorry that we had no news article last week, but I only had one small item. If you have any news, please call me at 365-2991. People enjoy hearing about Kings Mountain!

Pleasant Point Baptist Church held its Ladies Spring Tea on Saturday, May 10 in the fellowship hall. The meeting began with a welcome and was followed with a prayer and some games. The first round of the meal consisted of a garden salad, scones with cream, jam and a fruit cup. The second round was cucumber sandwiches, chicken salad sandwiches, sausage balls, macaroni salad and wraps. The dessert choices were carrot cake, pound cake, cheese cake, and brownie bites. The meal was followed with the awarding of a door prize, the singing of Amazing Grace and a prayer. There were 49 people attending and everyone seemed to have a great time.

Jennifer Stull traveled from her home in Georgetown, to spend Mother's Day with her mom, Judy Stull. They spent some time in Kentucky visiting and just being together.

I traveled to Huntingburg, Ind., last week to attend my grandson Devin Michael Murphy's Spring Choir Concert. As always, I enjoyed my brief time with them.

The Pleasant Point Baptist Church will be hosting their annual Homecoming on Sunday, May 25. The program will begin at 11 a.m. with a meal following in their fellowship hall.

I received word from Kay Gordon last week that she has not been feeling well and her husband, George Gordon has just under gone heart surgery. George is at home now and feeling better each day. We should remember these folks in our prayers.

It is that time of the year when we all decorate the graves of our loved ones who have passed. We should all remember to donate money for the upkeep of the area cemeteries. With the high price of gas, the cost of mowing alone is a giant expense. We all want the cemeteries to look well cared for, so we all must donate as much as we can to help make this possible. I hope I do not miss any cemetery names, but here are a few that I can think of off the top of my head. K.P. Hall, Pleasant Point, Gooch Cemetery [Donald Springer is the caretaker,] Wall Cemetery, and Double Springs in Waynesburg, all will need money to help maintain everything for the year. Most of the cemeteries will have a place to donate money and if we miss any of those folks, we can always mail them a donation. Have a safe weekend.

ing a preliminary hearing in the case Monday.

“They were intoxicated, they were in the residence and Mr. Gooch decided that he did not want anyone there,” Wren testified. “... It was right before that, supposedly from all the witnesses, there was a short altercation between Jerrill and Mr. Gooch where Jerrill actually tackled Mr. Gooch not othe couch. There was a short wrestling match, the brother Zach broke it up, and that’s when Mr. Gooch told everyone to get out of his house.”

Jerrill left the house, but did not leave the property; instead, he remained up a hill from the house, smoking by a vehicle, Wren testified.

“That’s when Mr. Gooch came back out through the door, told him to get off his property. And at that point, Jerrill came back down from where the vehicle was to the residence,” Wren said. “As (Alcorn) was getting ready to grab him, Mr. Gooch struck him with an ax handle, (hitting him) underneath the eye, causing a small split. “That’s when (Alcorn) grabbed (Gooch) and threw him out of the residence, at which time (Gooch) landed on his head, and that caused him to break his neck. Eyewitnesses state that Jerrill jumped off the ledge and punch (Gooch) one time and that was the extent of the altercation that happened outside.”

After the May 4 incident, Gooch was taken to a Lexington hospital and placed on life support, according to police. Wren testified that following the altercation, Gooch was “for all intents and purposes, brain-dead.”

Gooch died May 7, Wren said. “They unplugged him from life support and he perished shortly thereafter,” he said.

Wren testified that Alcorn confessed to “having an altercation” with Gooch and to “throwing him out of the residence.”

“Due to the evidence that was gathered at the autopsy, it was consistent with the story that I was told by (Alcorn) and also the other four subjects that were there at the residence at the time,” Wren said.

Alcorn was represented at the hearing by two attorneys, Erica Roland and Aaron Currin.

Roland questioned Wren about the initial assault charge against Alcorn and the subsequent upgrade of that charge to murder.

“The reason that I charged (Alcorn) with the assault charge was due to the fact that (Gooch) hadn’t died yet,” Wren said. “... I went with the next charge I could go with, which was assault first — based on (Gooch’s) injuries and during the course of my interviews, I explained to everyone that as soon as (Gooch) passed away, I would be updating this charge to a murder charge.”

Wren testified that he conducted taped interviews with all four people who were present during the May 4 incident. When Roland asked if the witnesses’ testimonies told “basically the same story,” Wren said, “yes, pretty close.”

Alcorn was being held without bond in the Lincoln County Regional Jail on Monday afternoon.

PRIMARY

From A1

Jailer candidate Wilson, who received the most votes of anyone in Lincoln County with 1,037, said he hopes the strong primary support will translate into similar votes in the fall.

“I appreciate all of our supporters,” Wilson said. “I appreciate (Aaron Daniel) McNew and (Victor Lance) VanArsdall running a clean and fair race and I look forward to everyone’s support in the fall.”

At the federal level, heavy favorites Mitch McConnell and Alison Grimes were favored by Lincoln County voters in their primaries for U.S. senator. Grimes got 76 percent of the vote in the Democratic primary; incumbent Sen. McConnell got 59 percent of the vote in the Republican primary.

McConnell’s Tea Party challenger Matt Bevin secured 38 percent of the vote. McConnell won handily over Bevin statewide, as well.

In the Democratic primary for fifth-district U.S. representative, Lincoln voters chose Billy Ray Wilson over Kenneth S. Stepp, 698 to 482. Statewide, however, Stepp took an estimated 59 percent of the votes and defeated Billy Ray Wilson.

Stepp will face incumbent Republican Hal Rogers in November.

Light turnout around Lincoln

Voters were few and far between at some polling places in Lincoln County Tuesday morning.

In Stanford, turnout at the third precinct was around 7.3 percent just before 11 a.m.; the fifth precinct had a turnout of about 3.4 percent.

In Highland, where both Democrats and Republicans had the chance to vote for a candidate in the third-district magistrate race, turnout was slightly better at 11:30 a.m. — around 10.8 percent.

Lincoln County Clerk Sonny Spoonamore said there were reports of multiple people walking into precincts planning to vote, looking at who was on the ballot, not recognizing any of the names and walking back out.

At one voting precinct, there were only two votes cast before 7 a.m., Spoonamore said.

Election officials also handled numerous calls from voters who needed to locate their new voting precincts, Spoonamore said. Lincoln County was required to redistrict this year to keep voting districts in-line with population numbers, which caused some people’s precincts to change, he explained.

A total of 3,051 voters participated in the election, which is about 17 percent of Lincoln County’s approximately 18,000 registered voters, Spoonamore said.

A problem with a Waynesburg voting machine caused a slight delay in the tallying of votes Tuesday night. Election officials had to postpone shutting the machine down until it was brought back to Spoonamore’s office.

When officials successfully got the machine to print out vote totals, they had to print out two separate groups of votes and total those together for an accurate count, Spoonamore said.

The election fraud hotline run by Attorney General Jack Conway’s office fielded 205 calls and 210 issues were reported around Kentucky. There were no calls to the hotline from Lincoln County.

Lincoln County unofficial vote totals are as follows:

Republican results

U.S. senator: Shawna

Sterling, 26 (1.6 percent); Matt Bevin, 634 (38.2 percent); Brad Copas, 7 (0.4 percent); Mitch McConnell, 980 (59 percent); Chris Payne, 12 (0.7 percent).

Lincoln County judge-executive: Philip W. Russell, 696 (44.6 percent); Barry Allen, 487 (31.2 percent); Jerry Lee Shelton, 379 (24.3 percent).

Lincoln County jailer: Robert “Rob” Wilson, 1,037 (72.4 percent); Aaron Daniel McNew, 243 (17 percent); Victor Lance VanArsdall, 152 (10.6 percent).

Lincoln County magistrate, third district: Paul Snyder, 135 (27.4 percent); Lewis Johnson, 131 (26.6 percent); Kendall Johnson, 226 (45.9 percent).

Democratic results

U.S. senator: Burrell Charles Farnsley, 134 (10.2 percent); Alison Lundergan Grimes, 1,002 (76.4 percent); Gregory Brent Leichty, 74 (5.6 percent); Tom Recktenwald, 101 (7.7 percent).

U.S. representative, fifth district: Kenneth S. Stepp, 482 (40.8 percent); Billy Ray Wilson, 698 (59.15 percent).

Lincoln County magistrate, third district: Johnnie Padgett, 208 (38.59 percent); Jimmie Ray Sims, 99 (18.4 percent); Renate Michelle Padgett, 118 (21.9 percent); Vola W. Brown, 114 (21.1 percent).

A truck stop that used to occupy the land across the road from the Halls Gap overlook is seen in this old, black-and-white photo. The stop included cabins for spending the night and an observation tower. It’s possible the land, which is now forest, could be turned into a picnic area for visitors to the overlook.

OVERLOOK

it because they deleted my comment. So I just made a picture of it and reposted it and put my two cents with it — and it took off,” Taylor said. “People commented on it and said, ‘Well, let’s get together and work on it and make it look like it should.’”

Now there’s a movement alive in the Halls Gap community to fix up the well-known landmark along what is now Ky. 1247. Taylor and others are also having early discussions about the possibility of creating a nearby picnic area and turn the overlook into a destination.

The Halls Gap overlook was first created back in the 1930s, when the road leading up the steep hill was still just dirt, Taylor said.

A truck stop that bore several different names over the years became a prominent feature across the road from the lookout, but that location is now two acres of thick woodland.

“It don’t look like it, but when you get up in there, you get lost real fast,” Taylor said. “I found that out the hard way.”

Taylor said legend has it that the lookout is situated at a high enough altitude that a student at Eastern Kentucky University was once able to spot someone in the top of an observation tower at the truck stop using just binoculars.

“If you’re from Halls Gap, you know about the lookout,” he said. “Pretty much, if you’re from Lincoln County you know where the lookout is. There aren’t many words to describe a view like that.”

Today, graffiti covers every foot of the rock wall that lines the outside of the overlook and trees have grown up below, partially obscuring the view. On a clear day, Lancaster’s two maroon water towers in Garrard County can still be spotted easily, well short of the horizon.

Taylor, who’s known locally as the “Mayor of Halls Gap” — despite the community being unincorporated — said he considers his efforts to clean up the outlook a mayoral project of sorts, as well as a way to make sure history isn’t lost.

“Most people say I act older than I am, which I do,” he said. “(This) generation don’t appreciate it. They don’t appreciate what’s been here. I guess it’s the way people is raised, I don’t know, but I love old stuff and I love where I live.”

Thanks to Taylor’s initial online post, at least 100 people have contacted him online about the lookout, if only to comment that they agree with him, he said.

Lincoln County Sheriff Curt Folger tracked down the two people who spray-painted the pavement — a task made easier by the public posting of the photo online, Taylor explained. Folger had the two go back to the lookout and attempt to remove the graffiti, but they couldn’t get it off, Taylor said.

On May 31 — a Saturday — Taylor and others will participate in a lookout cleanup day, when they hope to clean up the area and possibly remove the trees that are blocking the view.

Taylor said he’s working to find someone who can provide sand-blasting equipment to clean away the graffiti on the walls. And he’s talking to the property owner the wreck, Lincoln schools Superintendent Karen Hatter said on May 8.

On May 13, a hospital spokeswoman said Coleman’s condition was serious. It had previously been critical. But on May 15, a hospital spokeswoman said Coleman’s condition was once again critical.

The bus involved in the wreck was driven by Hustonville resident Judy Asbery, 44, who had 48 students on board. Asbery drove into the oncoming lane to avoid rear-ending another school bus in front of her, which had stopped in a line of traffic, according to state police.

A total of 37 students on the bus were treated for non-life-threatening injuries at area hospitals, according to officials.

Coleman was a Lincoln County farmer with many family members living in the area, according to his obituary.

Visitation for Coleman was Tuesday and his funeral was held at 1 p.m. Wednesday at Green River Pentecostal Church. Burial will be in Buffalo Springs Cemetery.

Hunt receives Spirit of Hospice award

Retired Brigadier Gen. Howard P. Hunt III received the Margaret E. Caldwell Spirit of Hospice Award from Heritage Hospice at its recent spring fundraiser, the Blue Jean Ball Auction.
Hunt was honored for the many ways he supports the organization with its outreach to veterans through the We Honor Veterans program. This program is designed to empower hospice professionals to meet the unique needs of dying veterans.
The program teaches respectful inquiry, compassionate listening and grateful acknowledgement for patients with a history of military service, noted Janelle Wheeler, Heritage Hospice executive director, during the presentation to Hunt.

"When I think about all the people I have met across this journey, one person stands out. Anytime that we've needed help, anytime that we've needed him, he's been there. We call and he comes. I don't think he has ever turned us down."
He has educated the agency's staff about his experience, his extensive military career and the unique needs of military veterans.
The agency especially appreciates Hunt's attendance at the agency's annual Veterans Appreciation Day where he "shakes hands with a smile and a heartfelt thanks for the veterans' service."
Wheeler shared that one of the staff's favorite stories is about visits Hunt made to veterans in nursing facilities during the first year of the veterans event.
"Even though some of the veterans suffered memory loss, they still could salute and recognize a general in uniform."

Hunt is the third recipient of the award that honors Heritage Hospice's founder and her ideals of going the extra mile to help her community. The family of Barbara and the late John Lockhart were the first recipients and Carol Reed, a 22-year volunteer with the agency was the 2013 recipient.
Hunt was joined at the event by his wife, Aprile, who he met 39 years ago while they were working in state government. They will celebrate 34 years of marriage in August. They have two children: Price, and his wife, Chelsea, who live in Danville; and Hanna, and her husband, Bryant Baker, who live in Harrodsburg. Howard and Aprile have four grandchildren and a fifth due in November.

Gen. Hunt served 34 years in the Air Force and Air National Guard. He traveled to 45 countries as part of his service. Prior to selection as brigadier general, Hunt served as commander of the 123rd Maintenance Group. Under his command, the unit provided aircraft maintenance and flight support functions for the 123rd Airlift Wing during Operation Iraqi Freedom and peacetime missions.
His awards include the Legion of Merit; the Bronze Star; the Meritorious Service Medal with Oak Leaf; the Kentucky and Tennessee Distinguished Service Medals and several federal and state awards. He received his commission in 1974 at Texas Christian University through the Reserved Officer Training Corps and went on to earn a Master's degree in Public Administration from Kentucky State University in 1977.

An encouraging word A day of remembrance

By Howard Coop

For 186 years – since May 30, 1868 – Memorial Day, or Decoration Day as it was known for many years, has been observed in the United State. At first, it was always observed on the 30th day of May. But, in order to create a three-day weekend, the National Holiday Act of 1971 moved Memorial Day to the last Monday of May.
Monday Memorial Day began as, and continues to be, a day of remembrance to pay tribute to all of those who, willingly and sacrificially, served their country in military service. But over the passing years, Memorial Day has developed into something more. Now, it is a day of remembrance to pay tribute to all of those who have lived among us but are no longer with us.
On this special day, flags lining the streets of our cities and towns will wave in the May breeze, visits will be made to cemeteries, and flowers will be placed with loving care on graves of loved ones. People will gather with patriotic pride in cemeteries throughout this land or in designated areas near them where, with great flourishes of oratory, eloquent speakers will pay tribute to those who served their country in times of need, including those who paid the supreme sacrifice.

Oblivious to every one else who may be around, others will go solemnly and lonely to the grave of a loved one, place some flowers upon that grave, stand there with head bowed for a few moments, shed some tears, and recall many precious moments spent with the one buried there. Then, they will walk away from that grave with a lot of those precious memories lingering in the mind and a vast feeling of emptiness in the heart.
Memorial Day is more than a holiday that, with a day off from work and some fun-filled outdoor activities, marks the beginning of summer. It is a special day of remembrance for those we have loved and lost.

Three receive scholarships from Stanford Lions Club

By Carol Parker

In April, three Lincoln County High School seniors were asked to attend a Lions monthly meeting with the purpose of choosing one for a scholarship. Along with their parents, the students came prepared to share about their involvement in community projects. How interesting to hear each tell about their trips to a foreign country, helping to build houses, feed the hungry, collect clothing, get people involved into a church life and their future plans for college or nursing school.

Needless to say, all three were so touched by their own experiences that each was chosen for a scholarship. When awards night came, May 13, Lion Wil Verhoff was prepared to do the presentation. Morgan Cooper, Ben Estes and Maggie Taylor were each awarded a $500 scholarship for their community service. These young people are people oriented and have set goals and seem to be on the right path to accomplish them.

As Lions and part of Stanford, we feel proud to be able to help any way we can to further this kind of growth for good.

The Lions meet twice monthly, on the first and third Monday at 6:30 p.m. at the Lincoln County Public Library. Won't you join us.

Call Bob Swett, Lions President, for more information at (207) 239-4766.

Ephraim McDowell earns Gold Seals of Approval

Ephraim McDowell Regional Medical Center (EMRMC) has earned three Gold Seals of Approval for health care excellence. The nation's most respected health care accrediting agency, The Joint Commission, has awarded EMRMC and their partners, Danville Orthopedics and Sports Medicine and Spine Center of Central Kentucky, this esteemed recognition for Total Hip & Total Knee Replacement and Spinal Surgery (spinal fusion, laminectomy care and anterior cervical discectomy fusion).

The programs underwent a rigorous on-site evaluation by an expert medical surveyor from The Joint Commission. Each disease-specific program is evaluated for compliance with standards of care specific to the needs of patients and families, including infection prevention and control, leadership and medication management.

"In achieving Joint Commission certification, EMRMC has demonstrated its commitment to the highest level of care for its patients," says Jean Range, M.S., R.N., C.P.H.Q. executive director, Disease-Specific Care Certification, The Joint Commission.

"Certification is a voluntary process and I commend EMRMC for successfully undertaking this challenge to elevate its standard of care and instill confidence in the community it serves."

"With Joint Commission certification, we are making a significant investment in excellent care on a day-to-day basis from the top down. Joint Commission accreditation provides us a framework to take our organization to the next level of performance and helps create a culture of excellence," says Vicki A. Darnell, president and CEO, Ephraim McDowell Health. "Achieving Joint Commission certifications validates that we are a Center of Excellence for total hip and knee replacement and a Center of Excellence for spine surgery."

The Joint Commission's Disease-Specific Care Certification Program, launched in 2002, is designed to evaluate clinical programs across the continuum of care. Certification requirements address three core areas: compliance with consensus-based national standards; effective use of evidence-based clinical practice guidelines to manage and optimize care; and an organized approach to performance measurement and improvement activities.

Founded in 1951, The Joint Commission seeks to continuously improve health care for the public, in collaboration with other stakeholders, by evaluating health care organizations and inspiring them to excel in providing safe and effective care of the highest quality and value. The Joint Commission evaluates and accredits more than 19,000 health care organizations and programs in the United States, including more than 10,300 hospitals and home care organizations, and more than 6,500 other health care organizations that provide long term care, behavioral health care, laboratory and ambulatory care services. The Joint Commission currently certifies more than 2,000 disease-specific care programs, focused on the care of patients with chronic illnesses such as stroke, joint replacement, stroke rehabilitation, heart failure and many others. An independent, not-for-profit organization, The Joint Commission is the nation's oldest and largest standards-setting and accrediting body in health care. ## Highland Methodist Church news

Sunday, May 18, was a wonderful day of worship and honoring of graduates of different levels of education.

Those honored were Hannah Wamsley, Ashley Lawrence, Alison Adkins, Aaron Scilley and Jessica Scenters. Rebecca Garcia read the list and information about each one.

Hannah Wamsley graduates on June 6 from the fifth grade at St. Matthews Elementary in Louisville. She is the granddaughter of Karen Davis and is the great-granddaughter of Eunice Wood.

Ashley Lawrence is receiving a degree from BTCTC.

Alison Nichole Adkins will graduate from Lincoln County High School and will be attending Georgetown University in Washington, DC and plans to study political science and law. She is the daughter of Tony and Brandi Adkins. Also she is the niece of Jo Ann Elliott. Alison was in attendance.

Aaron Michael Scilley will graduate on June 7 from the Mason County High School. Aaron has already taken some college classes from the Maysville Community College. He is a 4.0 student. He has been offered a full tuition scholarship from the University of Kentucky and a partial scholarship from Centre in Danville. He plans to attend Centre where he has been recruited for baseball as a pitcher and as a versatile player as well. He also was a recipient of a scholarship from the Mason County Orchestra of which he has been a violinist since second grade. His parents are Daniel and Michelle Scilley, and he is the grandson of Don and Doris Scilley. Aaron was in attendance.

Jessica Scenters graduated from ECU with a masters degree in Elementary Education, following a bachelor degree in Learning and Behavioral Disorders with Elementary Education. Jessica is the granddaughter of Iva Young and the late Bobby Adington.

Each graduate received a gift from the Highland United Methodist Church.

Other visitors were Isaac Hughes, son of Dawn Cheetham and grandson of Don and Doris Scilley. Also, Brandi Adkins, attended with Alison Adkins.

The William Otis Coleman family was added to the prayer request list.

Doris Scilley reported that Billy Reynolds has been taken to Cardinal Hill for therapy.

Karen Davis reported the Jeff Young will undergo additional tests later this month.

The sermon came from the scripture from 1 Samuel 3:1-10 which tells the story of a mother who made a promise to God and kept it, and Samuel who heard God speak and was obedient. God still speaks to each of us today and expects obedience from us, too.

Those who remained after worship and choir practice ate a delicious meal, and a special cake had been provided for graduates.

This coming Sunday we will be memorializing approximately 19 friends and relatives with a special service.

The choir will be singing two new selections entitled, "Sheltered In the Arms of God," and "That I Could Still Go Free."

Worship will be followed by a potluck meal, and there will be a Memorial Service at the cemetery at 2 p.m. Mr. Sammy Ford will be the speaker. Everyone is invited to attend.

Join us at 10 and 11 a.m. as we worship and learn about God's word each week.

City of Crab Orchard awarded $950 LEPP Grant

Governor Steve Beshear announced that the city of Crab Orchard has been awarded a state Law Enforcement Protection Program (LEPP) grant for $950 to purchase body armor.

A total of 27 law enforcement agencies were awarded $120,950 in LEPP grants, which are administered by the Kentucky Office of Homeland Security to give financial help for certain items essential in the course of their duties.

“These grants provide important funds for law enforcement agencies to acquire necessary protective equipment for their officers who endeavor to keep our Commonwealth safe and secure,” Gov. Beshear said.

“Every day, our first responders put their lives at risk to protect our community and our people,” said state Sen. Jared Carpenter, of Berea. “I’m thankful for our Office of Homeland Security for their oversight of this grant program – a program that gives our first responders the tools they need to carry out their important jobs.”

“Each day the men and women of law enforcement across our Commonwealth work to keep our communities safe, often at the risk of their own lives,” said state Rep. David Meade, of Stanford. “The money award to Crab Orchard will provide much needed body armor to officers and give peace of mind to their families as they work to keep the city secure.”

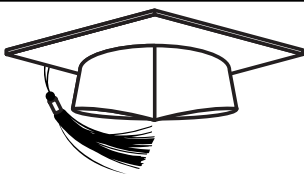

In conjunction with the Kentucky State Police (KSP), KOHS derives income from sales of confiscated weapons. KSP conducts periodic auctions – only to federally licensed firearms dealers – that generate dollars for the LEPP initiative.

KOHS then assesses needs and, after prioritization, provides available funds for the acquisition of body armor, duty weapons, ammunition, and electronic or muscular disruption technical devices, which are often referred to as Tasers.

“It’s gratifying to know we can help in some way to supply law enforcement with some of the tools they need to carry out their important jobs,” said Gene Kiser, executive director of KOHS.

LEPP support goes to police agencies of cities, counties, charter counties, unified counties, urban-counties and consolidated local governments, sheriff’s departments and public university police departments.

Supreme Court’s new prayer rules won’t work

Mixing prayer and state has always been a messy, contentious business — but last week it got even messier and more contentious.

In a close 5-4 decision, the U.S. Supreme Court upheld the constitutionality of prayers at legislative meetings, even when most prayers are prayed in the name of Jesus (Town of Greece v. Galloway).

Writing for the majority, Justice Anthony Kennedy reaffirmed the argument-from-history made by the Court 30 years ago in Marsh v. Chambers: Because legislative prayer dates back to the founding, it must be constitutional.

Moreover — and here’s the new bit — legislative prayers don’t have to be nonsectarian to be constitutional since such a requirement “would force legislatures that sponsor prayers and the courts that are asked to decide such cases to act as supervisors and censors of religious speech.”

According to the Court, once the government “invites prayer into the public sphere, government must permit a prayer giver to address his or her own God ... as conscience dictates.”

Before the ink was dry on the court’s ruling, Al Bedrosian, a county supervisor in Roanoke, Virginia, announced plans to jettison the county’s nonsectarian prayer policy and get back to the good old days of Christian prayers at every Board of Supervisors’ meeting.

Asked by The Roanoke Times if non-Christians would be invited to prayer under a new policy, Bedrosian said that was unlikely since “the freedom of religion doesn’t mean every religion has to be heard.”

Supervisor Bedrosian needs to read the fine print.

Justice Kennedy, it turns out, lays out specific ground rules for legislative prayers: No proselytizing. No denigrating other faiths. And the government must have a non-discrimination policy when selecting people to pray.

In other words, free speech during prayer time isn’t so free after all.

It’s ironic that Kennedy rejects requiring nonsectarian prayer in order to avoid government censorship of religious speech only to turn around and require prayer rules that could lead to even greater government censorship of religious speech.

What could be possibly be more entangling and confusing for government officials than trying to figure out when prayers cross the proselytizing line or come across as disparaging of other religions?

Messier still, how will local governments practice “non-discrimination” in the selection of prayer givers? Must the policy allow all comers — or can the list be limited to certain groups? In communities with scores of religious congregations — increasingly most American communities — the “prayer giver” list will be long indeed.

Many minority religious groups as well as non-religious people are already planning to test the application of the new prayer regime by lining up to give invocations in cities and towns across the country.

Within days of the Court’s decision, for example, the American Humanist Association announced plans to offer humanists and atheists resources for offering secular invocations at legislative meetings. And in Florida, activist Chaz Stevens has already petitioned his local city commission and the state legislature to allow him to open one of their sessions with a Satanist prayer.

Far from resolving the fight over legislative prayer, the Supreme Court has opened the door for new conflicts and more litigation over who gets to pray and what they can say. That’s bad for religion, bad for government and good only for lawyers.

If history is any guide, government sponsored prayers are a recipe for conflict and division. The only workable solution, in my view, is to get government out of the business of choosing prayer givers and monitoring the content of their prayers.

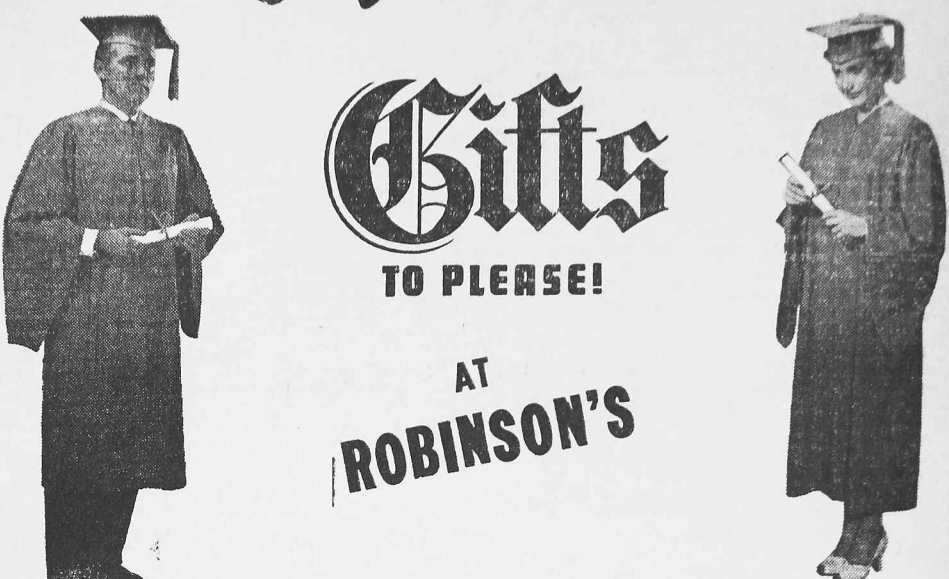

Perhaps the cacophony of controversial prayers at legislative meetings around the country will soon become so loud that government officials will end the fight — and adopt a Moment of Silence to solemnize their meetings.

Then, and only then, Justice Kennedy, will every citizen be free to pray (or not) “as conscience dictates.”

Argument against same-sex marriage ruling isn’t worth the taxpayer money it cost

Among the points made by the attorneys Gov. Steve Beshear hired to argue why same-sex marriages should not be recognized in Kentucky is that gay couples can’t produce children and the state needs continued population growth to economically prosper.

Really. Seriously. Is that the best the bright legal minds of the firm of VanAntwerp, Monge, Jones, Edwards & McCann could come up with?

The Ashland firm was awarded a $100,000 contract after Attorney General Jack Conway said he would not appeal the decision by U.S. District Judge John G. Heyburn II that would require Kentucky to recognize same-sex marriage from other states where such unions are legal.

“Only man-woman couples can naturally procreate,” attorney Leigh Gross Latherow wrote in the filing. “Fostering procreation serves a legitimate economic interest that is rationally related to the traditional man-woman marriage model.”

We don’t see how the members of the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati could agree that there is anything rational about what Latherow wrote.

There are many traditional marriages that produce no children and there are many marriages of gay couples where a child is adopted. There also are surrogates that carry babies for gay couples — both married and not married.

There also are cases of women who want to have children but for various reasons are unable to conceive. Some of them, too, adopt.

There is nothing rational in the thought that the state has any right to expect man-woman couples to have children, just as there is no rational thought that the state should mandate who may get married.

Beshear has championed the cause of providing health insurance to all Kentuckians. Would he deny health insurance to a child because his parents are both male or female?

It is also hard to take seriously a claim that the future economic viability of Kentucky would be harmed by the recognition of same-sex marriages.

Wouldn’t there still be the same number of man-woman marriages? Wouldn’t there still be the same possibilities for population rate?

How would allowing married gay couples to be recognized in Kentucky change the number of people having children?

It’s not like if we don’t recognize gay marriages that all of a sudden these gay men will marry straight women and these straight women will marry gay men and they will all produce children.

Kentucky’s economic future relies on recruiting new industry to the state, on working to find jobs for coal miners and tobacco farmers as those fields contract, on finding funds for higher education so our universities don’t have to raise tuition rates each year and on creating real substantive tax reform.

Kentucky’s economic future depends on our legislators finally realizing we are not on a level playing field with many of our adjacent states.

The state has no business in our bedrooms, telling us who we can marry and that whether or not we have children is important to the future economic condition of the commonwealth.

Marriage is a beautiful thing. Having children is as well.

Making silly arguments regarding both in a brief to the Court of Appeals is a waste of time and money.

More issues may be ahead for H’ville water customers

By Ben Kleppinger
ben@theinteriorjournal.com

HUSTONVILLE — Customers of Hustonville Waterworks have had a tough time recently as multiple issues with the city’s water system have caused outages. And they may still have to deal with more water-service problems in the short-term as upgrades are completed on the Hustonville water tower, Mayor David Peyton said.

“Our water department has gone through years and years of neglect,” Peyton said. “... In the past, the mayor and city councils have been more concerned about sticking CDs in the bank than putting money back in (to maintain) our water system.”

Peyton and the city council are planning for a $421,000 water-system upgrade project that would replace about 1 mile worth of old, cast-iron water lines that still carry water for the city’s 1,700 customers. The city is also currently paying approximately $89,000 to upgrade its main Hustonville water tower with a mixing system and a new coat of paint.

But in preparing for and implementing that water-tower project, waterworks employees have bumped into multiple problems with the aging system.

Earlier this month, as many as 1,400 Hustonville Waterworks customers found themselves without water after a bypass valve failed to keep water flowing while maintenance was done on another water tower near Junction City.

On Friday evening, an aging water main in front of Hustonville City Hall burst, causing a local outage for up to 300 customers while the cast-iron line was dug up and replaced with a length of PVC line, Peyton said.

The city doesn’t currently have the option of isolating broken water lines inside Hustonville city limits because there are 10 “gate valves” that do not operate properly, Peyton said.

“What we end up having to do is go into our tank and shut the whole city down,” he explained. “We should be able to isolate a single street without having the shut the entire city down.”

Peyton said he plans to get price quotes for replacing the broken valves and bring a proposal to the city council at its June meeting.

Regardless of if or when the city purchases and installs the valves, Peyton said he expects there to be more waterline breaks over the next few weeks as the upgrade to the Hustonville water tower is completed.

With the Hustonville tower shut down for upgrades, customers are currently getting water from a water tower in Moreland. As a result, there’s actually stronger water pressure than usual in Hustonville right now, Peyton said.

“People are happy with the water pressure, but the increased pressure is finding weak points in our system,” he said. “I’m full well expecting to have more leaks.”

Every time there’s a leak, the city has to issue a boil-water advisory, even if officials are confident there was no contamination of the line, Peyton said.

“I ask citizens to bear with us as we get through the next month,” he said. “We’re going to see improvements, but it’s going to get worse before it gets better. I sincerely apologize for the boil-water advisories.”

CodeRED Signups Encouraged

Peyton said customers who want to be notified of problems with the Hustonville water system should sign up for Lincoln County’s CodeRED notification system.

The “reverse 911” system is capable of contacting all landlines in Lincoln County, along with anyone who signs up for notifications on their cell phone or via email.

City and county officials can use CodeRED to notify those signed up of severe weather, boil-water advisories and other emergency information.

Peyton said the CodeRED system was used Friday following the waterline break in front of city hall.

“This CodeRED system — it’s just phenomenal what it can do,” Peyton said.

Lincoln residents who want to sign up for CodeRED can visit <http://bit.ly/1JcodeRED> and set up their preferences for how they want to be notified.

Peyton said anyone living in Hustonville who would like to be signed up but isn’t computer-savvy can bring their information to City Clerk Rita Clem at city hall. Clem will pass on the information to Lincoln County officials who can add the info into the CodeRED system.

Night of the dancing dead

The South Lincoln County Memorial Community Center was overrun Friday night with waves of zombies during the Zombie Prom, a fundraiser dance put on for the benefit of Relay for Life and the Lupus Foundation of America.

Zombified dancers from up to two hours away visited the Kings Mountain community for the unique event.

The event raised $1,226, which was split between Relay for Life and the Lupus Foundation of America.

Free school meals program to expand to Lincoln middle

By Ben Kleppinger
ben@theinteriorjournal.com

STANFORD — Starting next school year, a total of about 3,200 students in Lincoln County will be getting free breakfast and lunch.

Lincoln County students at eight of the district’s 10 schools have already been getting free meals this school year, thanks to the federal “Community Eligibility Option” program. Next year, Lincoln County Middle School will be added to the list.

The program reimburses the school district 160 percent of the cost for each meal provided to low-income students, who are referred to as “direct certified” students. Then, the district uses the excess funds to cover the cost of meals for the rest of the students.

The percentages of direct certified students at schools participating in the CEO program range from 50 percent at Highland Elementary School to 87 percent at Fort Logan High School and Preschool, according to district statistics.

Because the number of direct certified students in Lincoln County is so high,

What’s preventing Lincoln County High School from participating?

District statistics show that 47 percent of Lincoln County High School students are currently classified as direct certified.

At the 160-percent reimbursement rate, the CEO program would pay for 75.2 percent of the high school’s students.

But in order to receive the 160-percent CEO reimbursement amount, participating schools have to agree to provide meals for free to all students, whether or not the 160 percent covers all the costs.

That means the district would have to pay for almost 25 percent of the high school’s meals out of local funds if it participated.

the reimbursements from the CEO program will cover at least 96 percent of the costs for breakfast and lunch at every school except Lincoln County High School, said Ronnie Deatherage, the district’s head of food services.

After accounting for additional reimbursements the district receives and the fact that more students start eating at school once the meals are made free, there won’t be any cost to the school district budgets associated with offering the free meals, Deatherage said.

“We’re not going to lose any money on it,” he said.

Lincoln County began offering free meals via the CEO program to three elementary schools — Stanford, Crab Orchard and Waynesburg — in the 2012-13 school year.

When officials expanded the program to include all schools but the middle school and Lincoln County High School for this school year, Deatherage estimated it would cost the district about $2,800 per month because the percentages of direct certified students weren’t quite high enough to cover all the meal costs.

But Deatherage said the program didn’t wind up costing the district like he had anticipated because the number of students eating meals went up with the free price tag, so the number of reimbursements for the district went up as well.

Deatherage said it’s unlikely that the district will be able to bring Lincoln County High School into the program as well because its percentage of direct certified students isn’t high enough for the district to absorb the extra cost.

The rate that the district will be reimbursed — 96 percent — from the CEO program is guaranteed for three years, Deatherage said. That means the district can continue to offer free meals for that time period, even if the percentages of direct certified students drop, he explained.

If the percentages rise, the district can take the higher reimbursement rate, he added.

Deatherage said he believes providing free meals has potential positive effects throughout the school system.

“Discipline has been better because more kids are eating,” he said, noting that test scores have also been on the rise. “You can take that for what it’s worth. There’s a lot of different factors that went into those test scores going up and we’re hoping that because those kids were well-fed or had the opportunity to eat that it helped with the discipline and the test scores.”

SEWER

From A1

When the first phase is complete, about 580 apartments, houses and businesses in Lincoln County will be hooked up to sewer lines that run to Danville.

Most of the customers who will be included in the first phase live from the north U.S. 127 area, including the Arcadia and Shelby Woods subdivisions, south to McCormack’s Church Road in the Moreland area.

Portions of Hustonville, including Hustonville Elementary School and the local senior assisted-living center.

Inclusion of the elementary school in the first phase was what finally helped Lincoln County prove it was in enough need to receive the necessary grant funding, officials involved in the project have said previously.

Future expansions of the system will eventually provide sewer service for all 1,700 Hustonville Waterworks customers along the U.S. 127 corridor, Galloway said.

“This is a first step. There will still be more to do, but in this time when grant money is very scarce, I think it’s a statement in and of itself that ... you’ve been able to come up with the grant money to do this,” Galloway told magistrates. “It was absolutely essential that grant money was involved in this — otherwise, it’s not financially feasible.”

Magistrate David Faulkner said he was glad to see such a long-term project finally come to fruition.

“We’re tickled to death,” he said. “This is going to have a huge impact on the watershed, on water quality.”

The effort to bring sewer service to west Lincoln County began after the Environmental Protection Agency classified that area’s

Dix River Watershed as “impaired” and environmental studies showed that a large amount of contamination was due to human waste.

Galloway said he expects it will take another 15 years to complete the expansions of the system planned beyond the first phase. The scope of each individual future phase has not been determined yet because the amount of funding that will be available is unknown, he explained.

It’s possible that the next expansion would target the city of Hustonville, he said.

Much of the construction during phase one will take place on subdivision streets, where crews will be connecting individual homes to the main sewer line, Galloway said. In many cases, that will involve simply disconnecting a home’s septic tank and connecting the sewer pipe in the same place, he explained.

Hustonville Waterworks will be handling the day-to-day operations of the sewer system once it’s installed and processing sewer bills for the sanitation district. That setup works nicely because the customers in the area are already served by Hustonville Waterworks, Galloway said.

Officials have previously estimated that an average customer using 4,000 gallons per month will pay about $24 monthly plus however much has to be billed on top to cover debt from constructing the system.

Hustonville Mayor David Peyton said he is looking forward to the sewer system being in place because it will be “the best thing to happen in Hustonville in years.”

“The real benefit of the sewer system is going to be for our kids and grandkids,” Peyton said. “To me, it’s worth it. I’ll be glad to have a sewer bill to improve water quality.”

Lady Pat runners to hit state stage Saturday

By Nancy Leedy
Lincoln County’s track season reaches its end this weekend, with four Lady Patriots participating in the pinnacle of the sport, the 2014 Kentucky Track and Field State Class 3A Championships. Misty Simpson, Kanesha Miller, Katie King and Jaylyn Lester will be representing Lincoln in the state meet, which gets under way Saturday in Lexington at the University of Kentucky Outdoor Track Complex. Simpson and Miller, both juniors, and King and Lester, both sophomores, qualified to compete in the state meet in the 800-meter relay. The Lincoln team finished as runner-up in last week’s Class 3A, Region 7 Championships at Pulaski County in 1:54.15. Simpson will be hitting the track for two races at state, also qualifying in the 100-meter dash. Her runner-up time in the regional finals was 13.72 seconds. Lincoln faces a tough challenge in the meet, with the 2013 champions returning in both the 800 relay and the 100. Defending 800 state champion Bryan Station has the state’s top time of 1:43.16 coming into the meet. In the 100, Kianna Gray of North Hardin will try to repeat. Her best time this season is 11.70 seconds. The girls’ 100-meter dash is set for a 5:40 p.m. start Saturday and the 800-meter relay will run at 6.

45TH DISTRICT BASEBALL TOURNAMENT

Danville escapes with 7-6 win over Lincoln in first round

By Nancy Leedy
LANCASTER — Over the past decade, the Danville baseball team has rarely played the role of an underdog when facing off against Lincoln County. Basically, the Bat Patriots have become accustomed to being the hunted. That’s why Monday’s first-round 45th District Tournament game was so exciting for baseball fans, as Lincoln, the tourney’s No. 4 seed, put the top-seeded Admirals on upset alert. The Bat Patriots looked plenty comfortable facing off against the state-ranked Admirals, jumping out to a 3-0 lead and hanging tough as Danville battled back, but Lincoln fell just short of the upset, falling 7-6 in eight innings. While the Lincoln players struggled to cope with the season-ending loss, coach Daryl Day talked proudly of his team’s effort. “I’m just going to be honest with you, we deserved to win that game. I think if you went and asked Paul (Morse, Danville coach), he would probably tell you that, too. We played great all the way around,” he said. “There’s not a person sitting here that thought that game was going to go to extra innings. There’s not a person sitting here that thought that game was going to end as a one-run game. You’ve got to be proud of them.” Lincoln’s quest to pull off the upset started off well.

Lincoln senior falls to No. 2 seed in third round of state tennis tournament

By Nancy Leedy
LEXINGTON – Lincoln County’s Colin Hart had an exceptional year in tennis his senior season, one that saw him win a third regional singles crown and go unbeaten in the regular season. And the hits kept on coming this past week in the 2014 KHSAA Boys State Tennis Tournament as he made quick work of his first- and second-round opponents.

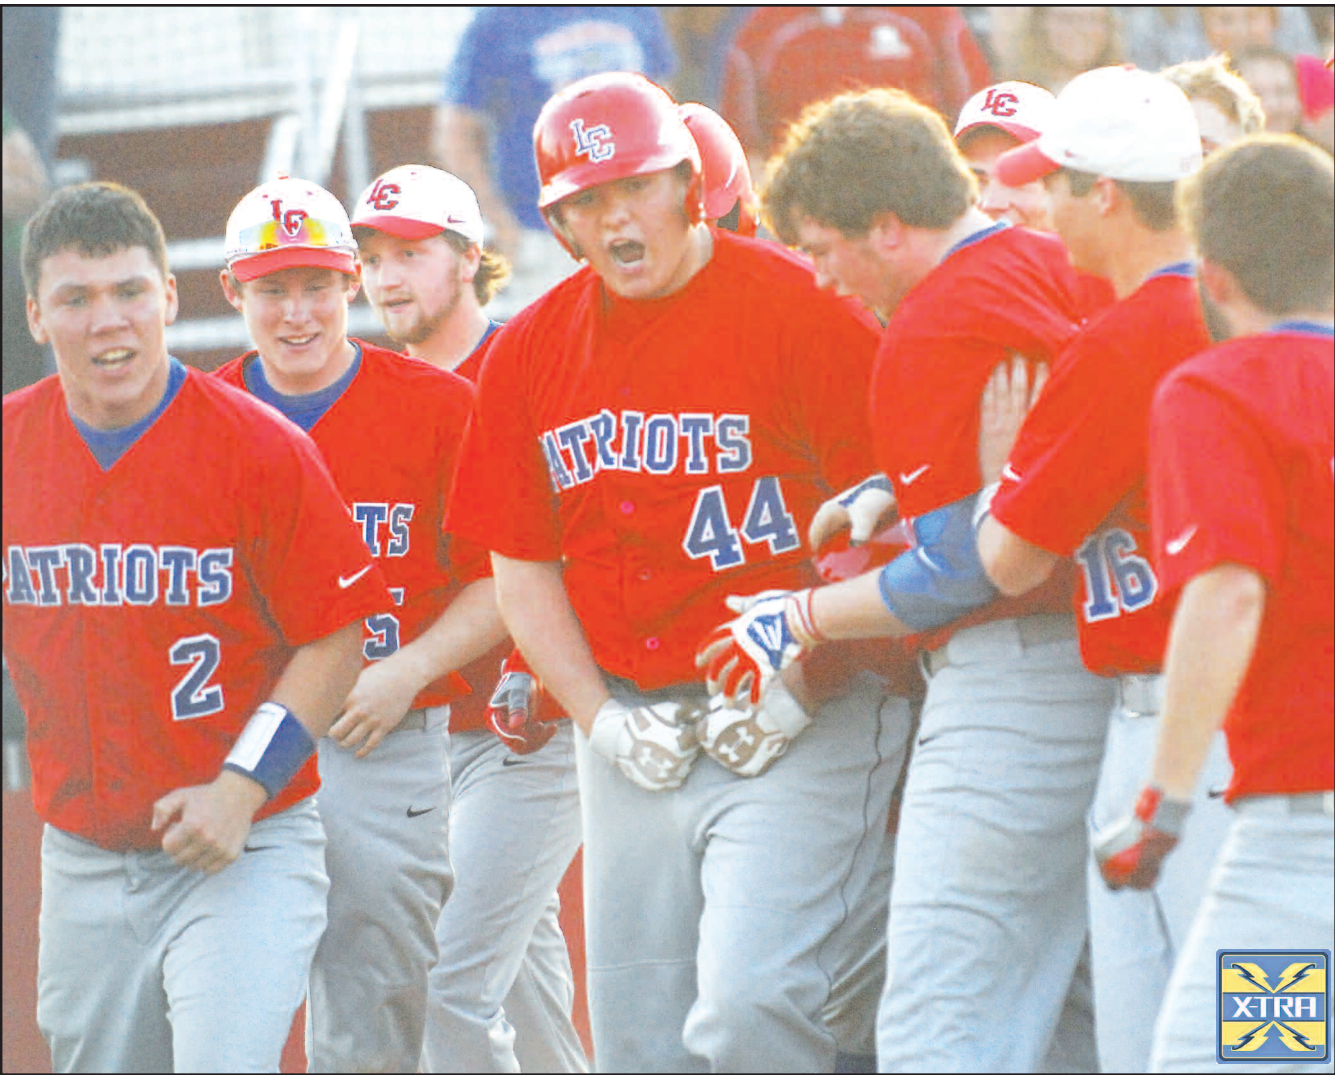

However, as with any ride, the excitement must end eventually, and that time was Friday in the third round. After winning 6-3, 6-3 over Gray Thurstone of St. Francis and 6-0, 6-2 over Sam Hodgson of Montgomery County in the first and second rounds, Hart faced the tough task of having to beat the tourney’s No. 2 seed in order to advance to the quarterfinals. But it just wasn’t to be for Hart, as he was eliminated by Brandon Lancaster, a St. Xavier junior, 6-2, 6-2 in the round of 16. “I thought I played well. It was close every single game, I just wasn’t able to convert when it counted,” said Hart. “I mean, every single game went to deuce and it was within two points, it could have been 6-2 me. I thought I played well, I just didn’t play the big points well whenever I needed to.” Hart knew coming into the match that Lancaster, who was runner-up in last year’s state championships, would be a tough opponent to face, and he said Lancaster proved it on court. “He just stayed tough,” Hart said. “He’s really tough to win a point off of, I mean, he really makes you work hard for each and every point, and when it counted most he just dug down deeper than I did. He played well at the moments that really counted better than I did. That was the match changer, I guess.” Lincoln coach Allen Lewis said he wasn’t convinced, even after the loss, that Lancaster was better than Hart.

CHANCE MADDEN (44) of Lincoln County is greeted by his teammates after banging out a two-run home run in the top of the eighth-inning Monday in the first round of the 45th District Baseball Tournament at Garrard County Middle School. The shot gave Lincoln a two-run lead, but Danville answered with three runs in the bottom of the inning to advance to the district final. The Bat Patriots drew first blood when Aaron Estes connected for a three-run home run over the left-field fence in the top of the first. Estes had two runs in the game, scoring off a Nate Benson RBI-single in the seventh to tie the game at 4-all and force extra innings. The long ball helped Lincoln (10-25) regain the lead in the top of the eighth as Chance Madden also went deep over the left-field fence to put the Bat Patriots up 6-4.

But it was Danville (24-

11) walking off with the district win. John Roney led off the bottom of the eighth with a walk and later scored on a Mason Stamm bases-loaded walk. Mason Schroeder, who beat the throw to reach, scored to tie the game when Madden hit Ben Mahan with a pitch, then winning pitcher Nick Serey took the walk-off walk to send in Collin Harris and lift the Admirals over Lincoln. “I feel bad for Chance,” Day said of the Lincoln junior. “Chance is a good pitcher ... What a lot of people don’t know is, is that Chance threw 140 pitches Thursday night. I didn’t have any intentions of throwing him tonight. He comes to me in the fourth inning and says, ‘You’ve got to get me in this game. When Logan’s done, I want it.’ I love it. I love a kid that wants to fight like that.” Lincoln might not have even had to go the extra inning Monday had two sixth-inning hits sailed just a few inches to the right. It appeared that Boone Baird had gotten the inning started with a double to left field, however, the field umpire ruled the ball foul. Two outs later, with Austin Greer on first after being hit by Serey, Madden also hit to left field. Greer touched home plate off the apparent hit and Madden took his place on second, but a late foul call by the umpire negated the run. “The first one he said, ‘It’s three or four inches out, Coach,’” Day said. “The one on Chance was the same way. inches, if either one of those balls lands on the line, who knows how much different this game would be."

Baird did get on base in the first inning, leading the game off with a walk. Josh Wilson replaced Baird on base and moved to second on a walk issued to Madden. Both runners were on the move and headed for home on the next at-bat, with Estes knocking out his home run to put Lincoln up 3-0.

Day said that early homer brought a confidence to his team unlike any he'd seen before.

"They played like the weight was lifted and they knew that they could play with Danville," he said. "It's the first time we've really come out and, against their best pitcher, taken a lead on them, knocked them back on their heels. It was great."

But the Admirals battled back, scoring one run in each of the first, second, fourth and sixth innings to ease on top 4-3 after six. Jay Hunn scored on a passed ball in the first, Ben Mahan came in on a Brian Baxa RBI-double in the second, Mahan scored again in the fourth on a throwing error and again in the sixth on another Baxa hit.

"Now, they're a prize-fighter," Day said of the Admirals. "They stumble a little bit, but they're still in there swinging. And we've got to be ready to take their punch."

Lincoln evened the game at 4-all in the seventh off Estes' score then tacked on two more in the top of the eighth off Madden's home run. Austin Smith, who had walked on, also scored on Madden's long ball to give the Bat Patriots a 6-4 edge.

Even after loading up the bases in the bottom of the eighth, Lincoln looked like it might be on its way to a win, with Taylor Edwards grabbing a line drive from Robert Rowland then throwing to second to get Hunn out for a double play. But it would be Danville claiming the win, with Collin Harris reaching to load the bases back up and the game ending with a hit batter and two bases-loaded walks.

Day said he was pleased with Lincoln's tournament effort despite the outcome.

"That's different baseball than what we've seen this year. When the pressure was on, we performed," he said. "We performed more than once. Aaron hits a big home run to start the game off, Chance hits a big home run there to give us the lead, Taylor makes a stab on a line drive and turns two, we think we're out of it. Things just kept happening. We made two or three little mistakes and Danville's a great baseball team, a top-25 team in the state, and they take advantage of our little mistakes."

"It's cliché to say that they left everything on the field, but those boys played their guts out. There's not a one of those guys that played tonight, especially on our side, that you can say that they took something home with them. They put it all out there tonight and I'm so proud."

Monday's game was the final high school game for Lincoln's four seniors, Boone Baird, Nate Benson, Taylor Edwards and Tyler Poynter.

"It hurts. This is going to hurt our seniors for a long time. They're not going to forget this one in a year or two," said Day. "These four seniors left a mark on this program. I told the younger boys, 'You've got big shoes to fill and you've got a high standard to follow.'"

While Day says it's hard to say good-bye to the seniors, he knows there are plenty of young players coming up.

"We've got 21 younger players that have seen what you have to do to go a step further to play in the region," he said. "We're going to have 21 young players that are going to work their butts off this fall and winter and next spring and they are going to be ready to go."

HART-BREAK

From B1

“I still believe after watching the whole match that Colin is the better player,” he said. “He made some unforced errors and the other kid was extremely consistent. But I believe that Colin played well. He had him moving and I truly believe that he lost more points from unforced errors than the other kid won points. It’s unfortunate to lose that way because I still think he’s the better player.”

Lewis said the 6-2, 6-2 final was in no way indicative of just how close a match it was.

“The score doesn’t look to be as close as it was. Colin was ready both sets and he played to the end,” said Lewis. “The first three games of the match, Colin had game point, and I don’t know how many times throughout the rest that he had a game point. There were several times that he had game point and the kid fought back. It’s a credit to him. He’s a fighter.”

In the first set of the match, Lewis said he had hopes of Hart making a comeback after Lancaster, who was up 4-1, voiced loudly his frustration on a “wide” call by Hart.

“He got frustrated there in the second or third game of the first set and questioned Colin. Colin was correct. I could see the ball and it was wide,” said Lewis. “It was the correct call, and I was hoping that that was going to start to frustrate him more and more, and help Colin.”

“He (Hart) played really well today,” he said “He came out today and was very focused you could tell. I really think he was outplaying the kid, it was just a few unforced errors. It’s just an unfortunate draw that he had to meet this guy this early.”

Hart, who is already committed to Eastern Kentucky University, wasn’t happy with the draw either, coming in as an unseeded player.

“It did affect me about the seeding at the very start because they did kind of look over me a little bit,” he said. “I’d been seeded all the years past and it just kind of got to me. I’m like looking at the other people in the draw and I’m like, ‘I’ve played them hundreds of times and played well against them, and here I am having to play ...’ I think he’s going to win state, honestly. He’s just improved so much over the last couple years.”

Hart’s prediction for Lancaster proved true as he dethroned defending state champion Austin Hussey. Lancaster dropped the first set 5-7 to the Covington Catholic junior, but came back to take the second set 6-2 and the super tiebreaker 10-8.

Hart said he would have liked to have claimed the state title for himself, but that it wasn’t his ultimate goal.

“It was a goal, but if I didn’t get it it wasn’t going to bother me. I’m not going to lose sleep over it. I’ll be over it by tomorrow and I can just focus on getting ready for college,” he said. “That’s my main focus, honestly. I think that I can take a lot from this and focus on improving through this summer and going into college. State tournament was just another tournament for me. I’ve really been focusing on just getting stronger for college.”

There was a large Lincoln contingency on hand to watch Hart in Friday’s state tournament match. Along with his family, Hart had several of his high school teammates in the stands to cheer him on.

“I’m glad that we had quite a bit of support come out for him today,” said Lewis. “It was a big match and he had a lot of support. They were standing and cheering throughout the whole match. I’m glad that they were able to come.”

St. Xavier swept the boys’ titles in the KHSAA state championships, with St. Xavier winning the boys singles, doubles and team titles.

It was St. X versus St. X in the doubles final as Matt Graft and Nick Waldeck defeated their teammates Coleman Cox and Nick Quinones 6-4, 4-6, 10-8. Graft and Waldeck were seeded No. 2 in the tournament while Cox and Quinones were No. 3.

The Cox/Quinones team knocked off McCracken County’s Grant Hammons and Mat Townsen, the No. 1 seed, 6-0, 7-6 (1).

The St. X Tigers defeated McCracken County 3-0 to claim their sixth straight state team title.

In the girls’ state tennis tournament, Michelle McKamey of McCracken defeated Meredith Laskey of Highlands 6-4, 6-1 in singles, Russell’s Maci Ferguson and Kierstin Hensley defeated McCracken’s Makenna

Lincoln County 4-H Longshots awarded NRA grant

The Lincoln County Longshots 4-H Shooting Sports Club is no longer in need of archery equipment and supplies.

The National Rifle Association (NRA), which often provides grant opportunities to not-for-profit entities involved in the education of archery and firearms, notified the Longshots Club in April that it had been chosen to receive a $2,700 grant for the purchase of archery equipment and supplies.

The grant came as a big boost for the local group, which had been running low on supplies given the rapid increase in members over the last few years. The group is up to a total of 40 members and had been in need of equipment for practices and competitions.

Cindy Wesley, one of the Longshots coaches said the receipt of the grant has "assisted the club greatly in serving

Researchers narrow cause of Asian carp die-off in western Kentucky

FRANKFORT, Ky. — Research indicates a condition similar to "the bends" in divers likely played a role in the deaths of hundreds of thousands of Asian carp in two western Kentucky rivers last month.

The die-off of invasive silver carp happened in the Cumberland River below Lake Barkley dam and Tennessee River below Kentucky Lake dam.

"Preliminary results show they've got bubbles in the gills," said Aquatic Nuisance Species Biologist Paul Wilkes of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. "You can see it very clearly."

Gas bubble disease can occur in water supersaturated with dissolved gases, and biologists believe it is a contributing factor in this case.

"Gas supersaturation is something that can happen below dams," Wilkes said. "When a fish is breathing this water with gas supersaturation it essentially causes an air embolism in the gill, which is similar to a diver getting the bends. A gas bubble will get trapped in the gill tissue of a fish and prevent blood circulation."

Biologists returned to the impacted areas May 8 to collect dying silver carp, a non-native species that threatens the well-being of native fish and mussels by over-harvesting plankton.

Tissue samples taken from those fish are being processed by staff from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's Warm Springs Fish Health Center in Warm Springs, Ga. and the U.S. Geological Survey. Researchers are looking for evidence of bacterial, viral and fungal infections. Kentucky State University previously conducted disease testing on specimens collected after the fish kill was first discovered April 23.

"When I say that gas supersaturation played a role, it was likely causing some of the scarring and open wounds we've seen on the fish," Wilkes said. "It's also likely that secondary infections were setting in and causing a lot of the ulcerations and other tissue erosion that you're seeing on the fish."

Multiple agencies are assisting the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife with the investigation, including the Illinois Department of Natural Resources, U.S. Fish and Wildlife's Cartersville Fish and Wildlife Conservation Office in Marion, Ill. and Warm Springs Fish Health Center.

"There's national interest in Asian carp for obvious reasons and these agencies jumped on board," Wilkes said. "This is a big team effort. We needed help and people from other agencies were ready to pitch in and give us a hand."

Kentucky Fish and Wildlife has created a webpage devoted to the Asian carp fish kill. It can be found online at fw.ky.gov. Click on the "Fish" tab, choose "More" from the dropdown menu, and then "Kentucky and Barkley Lake Asian Carp Fish Kill." The page will be updated as test results become available.

Breeding season reminders

It's mid May, so beef producers should have their spring breeding season underway with their cattle herds. The cattle should be in good body condition and should have access to a good loose free choice beef cow mineral as adequate mineral levels are important for cows to maintain a pregnancy.

A factor that can really impact pregnancy is the pasture the cattle graze two weeks prior to and during the breeding season. Hopefully, they will be turned out on the best pasture you have during the breeding period. Pastures containing clover or alfalfa are preferred along with those containing orchardgrass or low-endophyte fescue. Regular fescue can cause lower pregnancy rates. Use your best grass-legume fields for breeding season to get more cows bred and bred quicker.

A well managed beef cow/calf herd should in most instances be in a 60 day breeding and calving season. Why a 60 day season? Assuming that calves are to be weaned and perhaps marketed at a single date on the calendar, for every 30 days later a cow will calve, it will cost you about 60 pounds of weaning weight. If a cow gets bred one heat cycle later than would be most desirable, then the cost is 40 pounds in lost weaning weight. That costs you money. To make a 60 day breeding season work, cows need to be in average or better condition and stay on good pasture or if on lower quality pasture they need to be fed three to five lbs. of a 12 percent protein grain per head per day. Another consideration is bull power. In a 60 day season, two year old and older bulls should be expected to breed 30 cows. Yearling bulls can handle 15 cows. For many folks the calving season and breeding season is five months to all year. That will cost you a lot of money. You don't have good size groups to sell. You have different ages of calves, so you usually don't get herd health done in a timely manner. You have to make extra trips to the market. Some tell me they like calves coming all year because it spreads the income out. I would rather have more dollars at one or two marketings a year. I believe this is just an excuse for covering the lack of desire to go to the effort of building a bull lot. If your in the business to make money, then let a short breeding season help you make better profits. Plan to turn the bull in the field with the cows on May 5 and pull him out on July 5 and then keep him fastened up in the bull lot. Plan to pregnancy check you cows so you can market the open cows or move them to a fall group.

Management and observation of bulls is critical during the first few days of the breeding season. This is especially important for young bulls. Mainly, you are looking for indicators of libido and performance. Bulls should be observed several times a day until you are sure of the following:

- he is identifying and locating cows in heat
- he is successful in mounting cows
- he is servicing the cow
- that young bulls don't "fall in love" with one cow and ignore others in heat
- one bull is not over dominated in a multi-sire situation and becomes a punching bag for other bulls

All bulls should be checked for body condition during the breeding season. Extremely thin bulls should be replaced. Young bulls are still growing and often need more energy than the grass can provide. Yearling to two year old bulls should be supplemented with grain during the breeding season. Four pounds of grain daily should be enough. Manage your bulls properly during breeding season and you will be rewarded with a better calf crop next year.

Here are some tips to help you protect your grass and make your lawns look sharp.

- If possible, never mow off more than one-third to one-half of the turf height; e.g. when mowing at two inches, repeat mowing when the grass gets to three inches. Mowing off more than 50 percent of the leaves causes scalping – scalping during the hot summer will kill some grass plants and will always increase weeds.

- Best overall mowing height for Kentucky bluegrass and tall fescue lawns is 2 1/2 to 3 inches. If you vary the mowing height, mow higher in the summer and lower in the late fall or early spring. Higher heights will reduce weed infestations and improve rooting depth of grasses.

- Do not allow turf to enter winter at a high height, i.e. three inches or higher. Always mow during late fall after growth subsides. Excessive fall growth increases winter lodging, increases winter and early spring diseases and causes excessive turf browning.

- Clippings are normally good for the lawn-they return nutrients to the soil: maybe as much as 25 percent of the lawn's annual needs. One thousand square feet of a well-fertilized lawn can produce as much as 400 lbs. (Dry weight) of clippings per year. These clippings will average approximately 4.8 percent N, 0.7 percent phosphorous, 2.6 percent potassium and minute quantities of many minor nutrients-that's good stuff.

- Grass clippings do not add to or cause a problem with thatch-the organic layer of dead and living shoots, stems and roots that accumulates between the green foliage and soil surface.

- Mowing lawns when the foliage is dry reduces disease transmission and clumping of clippings.

- Never mow a lawn when the soil is very dry and the air temperature is higher than 90 degrees F. Mowing in these conditions mechanically damages the grass and can thin out or completely kill the turf. When the soil becomes dry in the summer and growth subsides, mow only when necessary. Mowing too frequently during slow-growth periods causes scalping.

Facts about lawn mowing

- Alternate mowing direction for each mowing to reduce the constant compaction and scuffing effect of mowers.

- While mowing a small amount of tree leaves can be mulched and deposited back onto the lawn, without damage. If leaves completely cover the surface, it is best to remove the leaves before mowing.

- Rotary mower blades should be sharpened several times every year. A dull mower will shred leaf tips and give the lawn a brown tint.

- Dull mower blades increase (1) fuel consumption;

(2) wear on engine, belts and bearings, (3) the buildup of clippings retained under the mower deck; (4) disease susceptibility (from constant tearing of the leaf blades); and (5) water use.

- For aesthetic purposes, lawns can be stripped like golf greens by mowing in a back and forth manner, in straight lines. For example, mow the lawn one week in a north-south pattern and the next week in an east-west pattern. Diagonal patterns are also attractive.

- Rotary mowers are extremely dangerous and cause thousands of serious injuries annually. Never mow when other people (especially youngsters) are close by and be extremely careful on sloping lawns.

EKU hosts summer camp for gifted/talented middle school students

A summer camp at Eastern Kentucky University for gifted and talented students entering grades 6-8 will emphasize the STEM-H disciplines: science, technology, engineering, mathematics and health.

The seventh annual event, titled “Soar to the New Heights,” will be conducted June 16-20 at EKU’s state-of-the-art New Science Building, on Kit Carson Drive.

The campers will meet from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily Monday-Friday, engaging in eight courses taught by EKU graduate students (mentored by EKU faculty) and members of the EKU faculty:

Plague, Disease and Death: Using examples from the past and present, students will explore how disease takes hold, spreads and threatens humanity; learn effective ways to control disease; and create plans to save the world from some of the most sinister foes around: those we can't see.

Did You Hear That: Students will learn how different sounds are developed and how sounds become pitches, and participate in many different activities illustrating how sound waves move and the science involved in sound.

Being the Best You Can Be: Do you want to be healthy and have fun while doing it? In this class, students will learn how to take care of their bodies by participating in fun fitness routines and learning what foods are best for growing.

CSI: Crime Scene Investigators: Have you ever wanted to know what it would be like to solve a crime? Use science-based inquiry to investigate crimes and find physical evidence, be part of the detective team by using the same tools that police officers use to find and lift fingerprints, and become a forensic scientist using the instruments used in crime laboratories to test for drugs and poisons.

Termite Races: Termites will follow a blue line drawn with some brands of pens. Students will investigate this phenomena, be challenged to determine which ink pattern termites follow most quickly, explore and compare parallel lines, thick lines or lines drawn with several brands of pens.

Deciphering Your Blood: Explore the unique features of red blood cells, called antigens, which determine whether you have A, B, AB, or O blood type, as well as the DNA sequences, genes, in your genome that determine these blood types. In fact, students will determine their own blood type without a drop of blood, extract their own DNA from their loose cheek cells and perform bench-top research techniques to analyze DNA. The course will aid students in planning their futures by examining various careers in the healthcare fields.

Fun with Physics: Students will be involved in a variety of activities to demonstrate how physics is used in the world today. Newton’s Laws of Motion and other physics concepts will be explored, and students will calculate the speed and acceleration of objects and experience how those objects will react with other forces (gravity, friction, etc.). Students will also demonstrate how these concepts are applied in the world today, such as with roller coasters, rockets, etc.

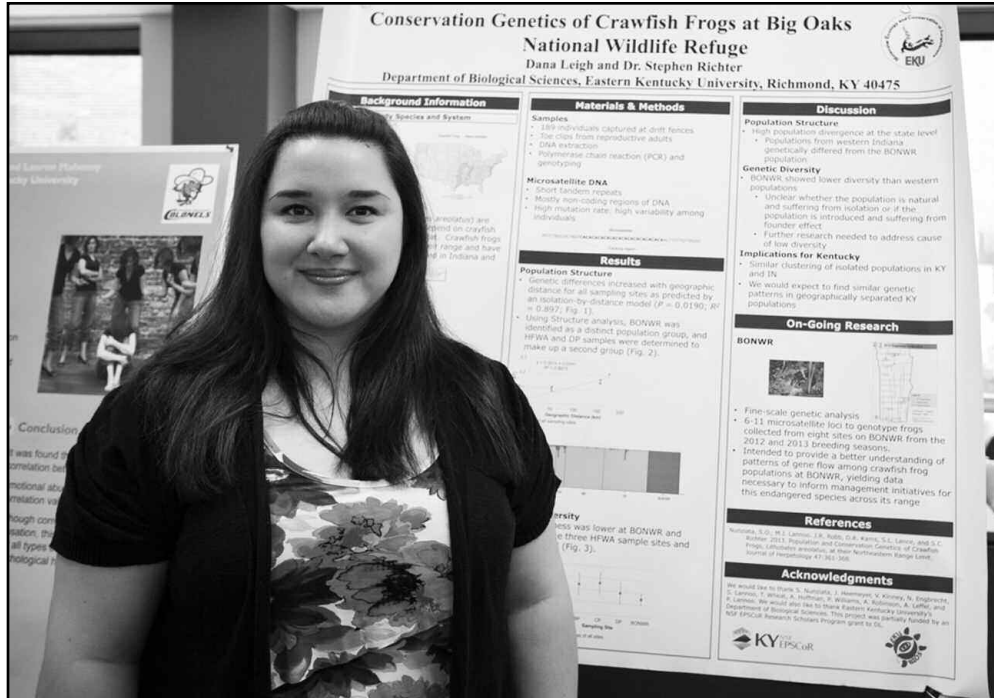

Exploring Nature with Technology: Students will explore nature through a variety of technologies, including iPods, GPS, digital cameras, and LabQuest sensors.

If Mother Nature Could Take a Selfie: An Examination of How All Things Are Connected: Students will visit the Taylor Fork Ecological Area, uncover how even the smallest changes to an ecosystem can have large impacts, and learn about issues related to water, land use, invasive/exotic species and how to be good stewards of the land.

Engineers Save the Day: Students can try their hand at engineering challenges that will push their limits in design, creation, and creativity.

The $145 cost for the camp includes lunch, snacks, and t-shirt. Brochures and registration materials are available by contacting Debra Sparks at (859) 622-2154 or debra.sparks@eku.edu.

Dana Leigh, a biology major from Crab Orchard, was among more than 100 presenters in Eastern Kentucky University's annual Undergraduate Presentation Showcase, which allows students to share their scholarly and creative work with a public audience. The collaborative projects require a substantial amount of time and a commitment from students and their mentors that extends well beyond regular classroom activities. Thirty-one mentors from 15 academic departments assisted the undergraduates with their projects.

Smith named Rogers Scholar

Lincoln County High School student Landrea Smith has been selected by The Center for Rural Development to represent Lincoln County as a 2014 Rogers Scholar. Landrea, 16, a sophomore, will join 60 high school students from Southern and Eastern Kentucky this summer for the Rogers Scholars program on the campus of Lindsey Wilson College. Rogers Scholars, the flagship youth program of The Center, is an intensive one-week summer program that provides leadership and exclusive college scholarship opportunities for students to build their skills as the region’s next generation of leaders and entrepreneurs. “As a Rogers Scholar, I hope to learn new things, make friends, explore my skills as an individual, and take home experiences that are both educational and emotional,” said Landrea, who plans to pursue a career in the education field. “My goals tie into the mission of the Rogers Scholars program, because I would like to help the youth of the future.” Landrea is the daughter of Gary and Anna Smith of Crab Orchard. The Rogers Scholars program was created by U.S. Congressman Hal Rogers so that “no young person should have to leave home to find his or her future.” “The program emphasizes the development of skills in fields like science, technology and healthcare, and instills in participants a sense of leadership, an entrepreneurial spirit, and a commitment to rural Kentucky,” said Delaney Stephens, youth programs coordinator and community liaison for The Center. “We are proud to announce the 2014 Class of Rogers Scholars and look forward to working with each of these participants this summer at the 17th annual Rogers Scholars program.” This year’s dates for the Rogers Scholars program are June 22-27 and July 6-11. Seventeen colleges and universities partner with The Center to offer exclusive college scholarship opportunities to Rogers Scholars graduates who successfully complete all of the program requirements. For more information about Rogers Scholars, contact The Center at (606) 677-6000, email youth@centertech.com or visit www.centeryouthprograms.com.

Casino Night 2014

Dancing the night away

LOVE YA! Prom queen candidate Kendra Mullins blows a kiss to her classmates, above, as she and king candidate Nate Hooper are introduced during Lincoln County High School's 2014 Prom, "Casino Nights." Hooper and Alyssa Meece, at left, were selected as the new king and queen by their fellow students. At right, money was flying on the dance floor as prom-goers moved to the music. Below right, line dances always bring a crowd of anxious dancers to the floor. Hundreds of LCHS students and their dates were decked out in their finest formal wear for the annual event held in the school gymnasium.
